WE NOMINATE

Norvell Brockman Samuels, able and far-seeing publishing executive, who after some four decades as a full-time Princetonian is about to join the growing ranks of Princeton-New York commuters. Word came over the past weekend that the 58-year old Samuels, a fixture at the Princeton University Press for a quarter-century and a forthright voice in public affairs for as long as any Borough elective official can remember, has been tapped (effective September 1st) for the presidency of The American Book Company, one of the country's "Big Five" in the highly competitive field of text-book publishing.

In accepting an exacting challenge at a time of life when most men are quite willing to travel well-worn ruts, this transplanted Missourian is closing out the first phase of a publishing career which in recent years has strengthened this country's outward reach to the world around it. As associate director and controller of the local University Press, as founding chairman of the Princeton-based International Book Export Group and as an officer of publishers' associations, Samuels has sought to "push" worthwhile American books overseas. It is indicative that in 1960 approximately 25 per cent of the Princeton Press' total sales will be distributed overseas.

Samuels, a director of The American Book Company for the past two years and also a director of non-profit Franklin Publications, Inc., that specializes in publishing American books in translation in the Near, Middle and Far East, joined the University Press in 1935, taking charge of all sales and promotion. The same year he also became advertising and circulation manager of the Princeton Alumni Weekly, the lone weekly among college alumni publications. His other publishing interests have included the Princeton Athletic News (the Palmer Stadium football program), The Daily Princetonian Publishing Company and The Princeton Herald, with which he was actively associated from 1927 until 1935.

Almost forgotten in the pell-mell rush of events in the late 1950's have been Samuels' noteworthy contributions to the Princeton community. It was in 1948-49 that his energetic leadership enabled the Community Chest, now the United Fund, to go over the top for the first time since World War II. Significantly enough, his patterns of organization anticipated the present-day operations of the community-wide Fund. He lined up a well-informed and aggressive staff weeks prior to the start of the drive, consulted newspaper editors and advertising specialists, and enlisted the help of opinion-sampling agencies. The result was one of the most effective Princeton campaigns on record.

Samuels, a member of the University's Class of 1924 and for years a key figure in Princeton's fund-raising programs, performed yeoman's service in behalf of Princeton Hospital from late in the 1930's until well into the 1950's and for over a decade was secretary of the Hospital's governing board. Deeply concerned with Greater Princeton's medical needs, and aware of the role of a modern medical center in an area of mushrooming population, he helped the late Curtis W. McGraw lay the groundwork for the all-out efforts that made the new, enlarged hospital possible.

For meriting his new assignment as head of a nationally known, 70-year old publishing house; for his searching interest in all matters bearing upon this community's well-being; for his capacity for keeping "first things first"; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for

SCHOOL'S IN

For Princeton, Anyway. The old-fashioned idea that school is out in June is disproved every summer in Princeton when boys and girls, high school students and teachers themselves go right on attending classes, doing homework and reading text-books just as though it were October and not the middle of the traditional vacation season.

A newcomer in Princeton this summer is the unique Princeton Country Day Summer School, whose curriculum is designed to broaden and deepen a pupil's intellectual experience, rather than to do remedial patching on subjects which may have taken a beating during the academic year.

There are 22 boys and girls (half of each) at Broadmead, studying Greek, Latin, mathematics, English or doing special reading in American history. The advanced math and English classes have attracted the largest number of scholars (11 each). Greek has only one. P.C.D. has limited the number of courses to two, but one girl student is so outstanding that she has been allowed to take three.

These are above-average boys and girls, but not geniuses, for the most part. They are in class because they want to be, not because they have a grade to make up, and most of them have responded with enthusiasm to the high standards P.C.D. has set.

Alpha and Beta "They aren't zealots, though," says Peter Rothermel, headmaster of the school, "and maybe some of them aren't quite so wildly enthusiastic as we hoped they'd be, but we're generally pleased and we hope next year to expand our faculty so that we can accommodate about 300 boys and girls."

In P.C.D.'s classes, students explore the basic laws of mathematics, read original historical documents and historians' interpretations of them, write critiques of short stories and receive concentrated training in Latin composition. The lone Greek scholar started from Alpha and will go all the way to Omega, if he can.

From Here and There. At The Hun School, 42 boys are spending the summer reviewing math, English, physics, biology, French and how to finish a set of tennis without being late for class. Most of the boys will enter Hun in September, and are tightening their academic standards so that they won't fall behind when the school year begins.

Classes start at 8 and wind up at 2:30. Boys have an hour of classwork in the morning, and then go back to the same class for half an hour in the afternoon. They cover, in the six-weeks' course, the same material they would during an academic year.

Hun draws its students from as far as Texas and Colorado, and 23 boarders are making their home on Edgerstoune Road this summer.

At Princeton High School, the reviewers are as young as 5th grade (arithmetic, English and remedial reading) and as old as the college student who wants to learn to type. There are about 325 boys and girls registered at the school this summer, some of them "just for fun."

One boy, for example, has begun to study biology because he likes it, another has launched into beginning Latin. Some of these students merely want a head start on September, others are genuinely interested in picking up another subject.

"Kids do their best work when they want to work," observes Harry Zoll, director of the school. "They have to work hard when they start a subject in a six-weeks course, but their enthusiasm usually carries them through."

Top of the Ladder. The elite of the summer school students are the 120 secondary school and college teachers who have been invited to Princeton University for the six-week summer institutes in chemistry, mathematics and physics. The purpose of the institutes is to "stimulate teachers of superior initative and ability" (the words are Dr. Robert Goheen's) so that they will inspire their colleagues when they return to school. The institutes are made possible by a grant of $120,000 from the National Science Foundation, and they have grown from a single course (chemistry) in 1958, to the present three.

The men and women have two 75-minute lectures every morning and a three-hour lab period three times a week. They explore the latest developments in their fields, including the newest approaches to teaching; they are instructed in advanced laboratory techniques; they watch men actuelly engaged in research (physics) "students" observe the attempts to control thermo-nuclear fusion at Project Matterhorn); and they participate in seminars on their subjects.

Five teachers from the Princeton area are participating in the institutes. They are Edward B. Bamman, Jr. and Gerald Donaldson, Jr., of Hun; Curtis S. Hitchcock of Lawrenceville; Mrs. Ruth Law of Valley Road; and Gerald Graninger of Princeton High School.

Other summer schools have come and gone since the academic year officially ended in June. The 75 young communicants of St. Paul's have finished their two-week catechism cougc. The 215 boys and girls from high school choirs have packed up and left Westminster Choir College's Vocal Camp, and this Thursday, the 300 men and women enrolled in the Seminary's 19th annual Institute of Theology will hold their final sessions.

The classrooms will all shut down in August, but it's only about six weeks until they open again in September. That interval is the true "summer vaveation" for the Princeton community.

ROUND UP

Better than half the normal amount of rain for July fell during last Thursday morning's cloudburst, 1.87 inches being recorded in the brief space of an hour. . . in all, 2.51 inches drenched the Princeton area that day, a figure that has been exceeded only twice—on July 6, 1868, and during hurricane Diane in August, 1955, when the all-time record of close to five inches in 24 hours was set.

Only serious damage caused by the storm was a washout underneath the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge over US 1 at Penns Neck, causing a detour of traffic into Princeton via Washington Road . . . as a result of that storm and the earlier one on July 3, July rainfall is already half an inch above normal for the entire month.

An envelope containing $300 in cash and $500 in checks was lost by Mrs. Thea Stewart of the Kingston Garage last week on her way to deposit the money but 12 hours later, it was returned by an unidentified resident of Hightstown, who had found it between the two bridges over the Millstone River and the canal at Kingston. . . .monetary note of enother nature: municipel taxes are due August 1, with interest charged thereafter.

Summer's here: Township Committee meeting was cancelled Monday night because no quorum could be obtained. . . .Mayor Fairman in Washington on military duty, Committeeman Smoyer on a business trip in India and Committeeman Marvel absent because of a death in his family. . . .no Township Court action. . .only one Borough case —a $20 fine imposed on Oliver Hearn, 22, 290 Witherspoon Street, for careless driving.

An expanded TOWN TOPICS Business Index this week gives a detailed statistical picture nf the state of many aspects of commerce wthin the community (page 22). . . .e 55-year-old Princeton business which has a payroll of 100 hut is in little contact with the general public is the subject of a feature story on page 16. . . .and the second in a series of articles reviewing Princeton's prospects for the 1960 football season begins on Page 23.

If you have a pet pigeon, there's a classified ad for you in this week's issue . . . he keeps wandering into a woman's home and likes it so much she can't shoo him away.

Ten Years Ago. TOWN TOPICS July 21, 1950: The effect of the deteriorating international scene on Princeton was reported this way in the current issue:

"Formula for '50. War news from Korea has temperarily depleted the entire sugar stocks in some stores, while one automobile dealer reports that he has sold more tires and tubes in the past two weeks than he normally does in e year.

"Coffee and liquor purchases are on the upswing, too. Princetonians, it seems, are no different from other Americans. If the world is going to explode into atomic warfare, they want to make sure they ride into the last chapter with all the pleasures of life at hand."

Then, as today, the borough was wrestling with puzzling census figures. . . .the municipality's belief was that it had achieved an increase of 4148 persons in a decade without credit for students in the various educational institutions in town, but when federal census officials reported that they were part of the 1950 total, the Borough determined that it had actually been charged with a decrease of 82 persons since 1940 . . . the New Jersey Poll found car owners in favor of a plan to mail lout license plates instead of queuing up for them prior to the March 31 deadline.

In the theatres, McCarter's summer season was offering Burgess Meredith in the story of a rabbit named "Harvey," the Playhouse was booking James Stewert in "Winchester .73," a western, and The Garden kept pace with the Korean conflict by re-issuing "So Proudly We Hail" a 1943 story of nurses on the Bataan peninsule. . . .on the birth list at Princeton Hospital were daughters to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Duprez, 75 Harrison; Mr. and Mrs. Delton Pritchard, Varsity Avenue, Penns Neck; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hobler, Mercer Road; Mr. and Mrs. Ward Davidson Jr., 67 Spruce Street; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perone, 47 North Tulane; Mr. and Mrs. Dougles Watson, 17 Ewing; sons to Mr. and Mrs. John T. McLoughlin, 49 Allison; Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Green, 40 Witherspoon.

FROM PRISON TO PULPIT

Parolee to Attend Seminary. Last October William Sparks went to prison for misappropriating $50,000 worth of funds from a real estate firm. This week he was released on parole to become a student at Princeton Theological Seminary.

Mr. Sparks, who will enter the Seminary next fall to study for his Bachelor of Divinity degree, was released Monday, cutting what was to be a 11½ to 23-month sentence to nine months. Tuesday the 34-year old Philadelphia resident visited the Seminary to begin arrangements for his "new life" studying to be a minister.

Although the Seminary has had no experience with students with backgrounds such as Mr. Sparks', it is eager to do everything it can "to help Mr. Sparks to rehabilitate himself in society after his trying experience," according to Dean Elmer G. Homrghausen. He added the Seminary is "impressed" with the former prisoner's potential.

The court is also supporting the project. Judge Leo Weinrott commented that "maybe this is one of those storybook tales where someone has really surmounted a really heavy burden and shows the intestinal fortitude to come through."

Minister Helped. The convict turned seminarian explained that he felt the need for "something better" after he made his mistake. He credits his minister, the Rev. Richard S. Armstrong, pastor of the Oak Lane Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, with being the main factor in his change.

The Rev. Mr. Armstrong was instrumental in placing Mr. Sparks at the Seminary and will continue his help by taking the parolee on as an assistant over the weekends. The Rev. Mr. Armstrong's church has also offered to provide support for Mr. Sparks.

Mr. Sparks, who graduated from Temple University in 1950, is a Purple Heart Army veteran. He is married and has two children, William, 3, and Sarah, 6. His wife has been offered a position as a teacher in the Princeton area, according to the Seminary.

When he missappropriated the $50,000 in 1956, he planned to repay the funds. Mr. Sparks has stated. He said he has repaid everything except some $18,000 and hopes some how to be able to complete the restitution.

SEN. KENNEDY INDEBTED

To Richard Swinnerton. Back in 1943, John F. Kennedy, the Democratic Presidential nominee,

NOW, TAKE THE ABLATIVE: Latin in summer? "Sure," these students answer, "why not?" Robert Carrick (left), Linda Almgren and teacher John D'Arms explore case and tense at Princeton Country Day School as part of the school's new summer enrichment program, designed not for students who have to review, but students who want to learn for the fun of it. then a junior grade lieutenant in the Navy, saved his life and that of a wounded shipmate by swimming to the safety of a South Pacific island after the PT boat he commanded was cut in two by a Japanese destroyer. Five hours were to pass before Sen. Kennedy, holding his shipmate's life preserver strap between his teeth, reached shore.

Sen. Kennedy was taught to swim when he was ten years old by Richard Swinnerton of 5 Murray Place, freshman tennis and squash coach at Princeton University. The 67-year-old Englishman, an expert swimmer, gymnast, and boxer, taught swimming for 15 years during the summer at Centerville, a once-fashionable Cape Cod resort.

Mr. Swinnerton declared that he wasn't surprised when his former pupil was nominated. "He always was an ambitious lad who really went after it when he wanted something." Mr. Swinnerton said, adding, "Jack has a lot of fortitude."

During his instructing at the Cape, Mr. Swinnerton taught swimming to the entire Kennedy family, including Jack's four sisters, his older brother, Joseph Jr., who was killed in World War II, and his younger brother, Robert, Senate crime investigator who served as campaign manager for Jack. Another younger brother, Ted, who also played an active role in the Massachusetts Senator's campaign for the nomination, was "too young" to go swimming in those days.

According to Mr. Swinnerton the thick head of hair which has become a trademark with the Senator was prominent during Sen. Kennedy's youth. "Jack was never one of those wise-cracking kids", he said. "He always had a ready smile and he always respected you," Mr. Swinnerton recalled.

Sen. Kennedy was forced to leave Princeton University because of illness after he had enrolled as a freshman in 1935 through the urging of Mr. Swinnerton. The following year, much to Mr. Swinnerton's regret, young Kennedy enrolled in Harvard University where he graduated in 1940.

LOST: ONE SPORTS CAR

In 60 Feet of Water. A convertible sports car stolen from a Princeton resident was recovered on Tuesday by skindivers at the bottom of a 60-foot quarry. The abandoned pit, located near Van Kirk Road near Lawrenceville, is filled with water that is ice cold despite the July heat.

Borough police report that the car, owned by Paul Curran, 28, of 25 Madison Street, was stolen from Park Place by a 17-year old who also lives here. His name is being withheld since he is a juvenile.

Chief Raymond Mondone said that the boy admitted having removed a Pennsylvania license plate from another car, attaching it to Mr. Curran's and driving the convertible for several days. Frightened when a police cruiser car came near him, he and his friends decided to "ditch" the stolen automobile in the Lawrenceville quarry.

A diver attached to the State Police took a hook and tow cable into the 60-foot pit and attached it to the automobile. A wrecker then pulled the car out and police impounded it.

Police said that Miss Maria Di Corrado, 22, of Brooklyn made a turn from Stockton into Bayard and veered across the double line. She struck a car operated by Douglas W. Carlson, 30, of Carter - Rocky Hill Road. Mr. Carlson's car was extensively damaged on the left side and towed from the scene; Miss Di Corrado was taken by police to Princeton Hospital, where she was treated for a lacerated knee and upper lip.

BOY DROWNS

In Snowden Lane Pool. Artis E. Manning, a nine-year old Trenton boy, drowned last Thursday in a private pool in the rear of a Snowden Lane residence.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Artis E. Manning, Sr., of 367 St. Joe's Avenue, Trenton, young Artis had accompanied his mother to work at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Katz, 91 Snowden Lane. The youngster was discovered at approximately 12:30 p.m., clad in bathing trunks, floating in the deep end of the 30-foot pool by Mrs. Katz, who pulled the body out and applied artificial respiration.

Forty minutes of such efforts by Mrs. Katz and the Princeton First Aid Squad failed to revive the boy, and he was pronounced dead at 1:20 p.m. by Dr. Leonard Berry, deputy Mercer County Physician. According to Princeton Township Police Detective Frederick Porter the boy had only been missing "for five or six minutes" before he was located in the pool.

Detective Porter said Mrs. Manning claimed her son was an accomplished swimmer. One of five children, Artis was a student in the fifth grade at Columbus Elementary School, Trenton. He is survived by his parents, two brothers, Charles and Erwin; two sisters, Linda and Brenda, and two grandparents.

TOWN TOPICS was hardly out last week with its thoughts about the growing need for water when a near-record rainfall (see "Round-Up," page 2) hit these parts. Someone, obviously, left the tap running.

Whatever the heat and humidity—and last week did produce two of those "90-day broilers—" figures show July this year is considerably cooler than normal. The average for the next four days will remain around 76, with showers possibly Thursday but the outlook good for another pleasant weekend.

DR. ERDMAN HONORED

By Miss Fine's Trustees. The Board of Trustees of Miss Fine's School has adopted a resolution honoring the memory of the late Dr. Charles R. Erdman:

"Whereas, Dr. Charles R. Erdman, President Emeritus of the Board of Miss Fine's School, a long time friend of May Margaret Fine, and a charter trustee of the School, has served the school ably for many years, and

"Whereas for the past 50 years, Dr. Erdman has been present without interruption at the opening and closing of the school year to offer the invocation and benediction as well as on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the school,

"Therefore be it resolved that the Board of Trustees of Miss Fine's School hereby expresses its deep-felt thanks and gratitude for the many years Dr. Erdman has been associated with the school, for his wise guidance and devoted concern, and for the gentle radiance of his spirit. And let it be further known that his memory lives on in the hearts of countless students who have been privileged to know him."

SECOND CONCERT PLANNED

By Community Band. The second summer concert by the Princeton Community Band has been scheduled for Friday, July 22, at 7:30 p.m. in front of Nassau Hall. The concert will be under the direction of Richard Gerstenberger.

Featured as a clarinet soloist will be George M. Jones of 265 Ewing Street. Mr. Jones will play "Recitative and Polonaise" Op. 74 for clarinet and band by Carl Maria Von Weber. Currently a music professor at Douglass College, Mr. Jones plays first clarinet in the Princeton Symphony Orchestra and is a former member of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra.

Other selections for the evening will include "Semiramde" by G. Rossini; "Introduction and Allegro" for Brass and Percussion by Robert Beadell; "Polka and Fugue" from the opera "Schwanda, the Bagpiper" by Jaromir Weinberger; "Them Basses," a march by G. H. Huffine; and selections from "My Fair Lady."

WINDOWS BROKEN

At High School, Liquor Store. Ten Princeton High School windows valued at $100 and a small front window at Cousins Liquor Store on Palmer Square were broken last week. A piece of ballast rock used for highway and railroad beds did the damage in each instance and police believe that the same person, or persons, are responsible.

A display bottle of Scotch was broken and several other bottles of liquor were taken from Cousins. Although the store was equipped with a burglar alarm system, the window was broken in such a manner that the alarm was not sounded. A clerk, Raymond Grover, reported the incident.

Dr. Chester R. Stroup, Superintendent of Schools, notified police of the damage to the high school.

TO HOLD POLIO CLINIC

At Princeton Hospital. Princeton Hospital's monthly polio clinic will be held on Tuesday, July 26, from 4 to 5 p.m. in the hospital's Outpatient Department. Booster shots, as well as first, second and third vaccinations, will be given.

Parents are reminded that many schools now require a record of polio vaccinations before children can enter school. As the climax of the summer season approaches, health authorities have urged that all who have not yet received shots receive their initial injections as soon as possible. Those receiving first injections at the July clinic will be eligible for the second in August. An interval of at least six months must elapse between second and third injections.

News Of The THEATRES

"MAJOR BARBARA" OPENS

In Murray Theatre. The Shaw that The University Players have chosen for this summer is "Major Barbara" and the story of the munitions maker and his Salvation Army daughter opened in Murray Theatre Monday night. It will continue through Saturday, with a nightly curtain, one devoutly hopes, at 8:30 p.m. and not at 9.

The tradition of the late opening-night curtain is being taken all too seriously at Murray Theatre these summer evenings, or should one say, the tradition of a prompt 8:30 curtain is taken all too casually. Any play as long and as wordy as "Major Barbara" owes to its audience an earlier final curtain than 12:15 a.m.

Now, for the business of the evening. Act One is slow, partly because of Shaw. But Act Two begins to move, particularly in its closing dialogue between Stephen Undershaft, the cannon manufacturer, and Cusins, the professor of Greek. George Segal creates a superb Undershaft, with Shavian beard, Shavian glitter in the eye and a fine ear for Shavian dialogue.

Chester Doherty takes a while to warm up, but by the third act he is in full motion as the Greek professor, turned Salvation drum-beater, turned munitions heir. He is almost an equal match for the skill of Mr. Segal.

Together these two—with Mr. Segal slightly in the lead all the way—carry the play. Joanna Merlin is a zealous Barbara, but Shaw has given all the good lines to the men, so she must do the best she can.

As her mother, Lady Undershaft, Rosemary Murphy is properly brisk and unreasonable. Miss Murphy is an extremely handsome woman who brings some stature to last week's Cassandra or this week's upper-class English matron.

Battis Stars - as Always. In a lesser role, Emery Battis stars, as he always does, playing Peter Shirley, the working man edged out by age, with sympathy and humor. Anita Mariaia, as Rummy Mitchens, is an aging Liza Doolittle with some raffish Cockney mannerisms. It seemed to this reviewer that Richard Carroll-Hudson's Charley came too close to the edge of farce, but others in the opening night audience found his interpretation of the fatuous Charlie amusing and believeable.

The production is paced well. The lines came out too fast and not loud enough in the beginning, but this may have been due to opening-night nerves. As the play settled in for the evening, the actors slowed down a bit and projected their lines more clearly. Some of the lines were not learned properly, which is fatal with Shaw, but here again, it may be unfair to pass judgment on an opening night.

By using the entire little Murray Theatre, Roger Graef, the director, has managed to create almost a theatre-in-the-round, sending Salvation Army bands parading up and down the aisles, exiting and entering his actors from the rear and so on, and this mobility serves the practical purpose of making Murray, which is really not much larger than a puppet theatre, seem bigger and more flexible than it really is. The direction is smooth and imaginative without being obtrusive.

UNSCRUPULOUS: Gerald Hiken plays the part of Andrew Undershaft, the unscrupulous munitions manufacturer in The University Players' production of Shaw's "Major Barbara."

The sets, as a whole, are not distinguished. Lady Undershaft's drawing room is pleasant enough, but the Salvation Army barracks and the Undershaft Works show little imagination and some sloppy craftsmanship.

"Major Barbara" is worth a summer evening, in this Players' production. A good, if not completely full, house applauded its Monday night opening and it will probably turn out to be one of the most successful of the 1960 offerings.

WILL OFFER IBSEN

In Miller Adaptation. Arthur Miller's adaptation of Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People" will open at Murray Theater Monday at 8:30 p.m. as the fifth offering of The University Players in their 1960 summer season. The play will run through Saturday, July 30.

Characterized as "an angry and idealistic masterpiece," the Ibsen work shows how a righteous man who has the best interests of his fellow towns-people at heart can become an outcast when the "common good" threatens to turn into economic disaster. Miller has taken Ibsen's original idea and given it a personal and contemporary angle, using his own experiences as a political suspect to provide immediacy to the drama.

Gerald Hiken will play the role of Dr. Stockman and Peggy Allison will be seen as his daughter, Petra. Mr. Hiken was last seen on Broadway with Rex Harrison in "The Fighting Cock" and Miss Allison has appeared frequently in Princeton productions.

Emery Battis, another Princeton favorite, will appear in a featured role. Chester Doherty and George Segal, both seen this summer in "The Prodigal" and "Major Barbara," will play in the Miller-Ibsen production. David Sawyer will direct.

As a special feature, The University Players are now offering two tickets for the price of one on Monday nights only. Reservations may be made by calling Murray Theatre, WA 4-3539.

THEY'RE ACTING AGAIN

"Little Theatre" in Second Season. The high school students who inaugurated "The Little Theatre" last summer will produce again this year. Three one-act plays have been scheduled for August 11, 12 and 13 at 8 p.m. and August 13 at 2:30 p.m. in the auditorium at Princeton Country Day School. There will be no admission, but contributions will be solicited.

The three plays will be John Synge's "Riders to the Sea," Eugene O'Neill's "Ile" and the Pyramus and Thisbe scene from "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

James Thorpe, who will enter Swarthmore this fall as a freshman, will serve as director of the triple production. Barbi Alden will be assistant to the director. Richard Tinsley will be stage manager. Gordon Lutz and Miss Alden will arrange for costumes and Linda Almgren and Miss Alden will do the choreography.

The cast in the Synge work will be led by Betzie Parker as Maurya. Barbi Alden will play Nora. Cozy Spitzer will be Cathleen and Peter Vajk will be Bartley. In the O'Neill, Peter Vajk will play Captain Keeney. William Vajk will be seen as Ben. Robert Blumenfeld as the Steward, David Groo es the Mate, Linda Almgren as Annie and John Thorpe as Joe.

Peter Vajk will be the Prologue in the Shakespeare. Robert Blumenfeld will play Pyramus, John Thorpe will be Thisbe and Joan Barenholtz will be the Wall. Cynthia Westwat has been cast as Moonshine, Ditty Leverenz will play the Lion, David Groo will be Theseus and Virginia Corbett will play Hippolyta. William Vajk has been cast as Lysander and Gordon Lutz as Demitrius.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Pollyanna (July 20-26) shouldn't alienate anyone short of Scrooge himself. On the other hand, the light remake of Eleanor H. Porter's best-seller won't make many people sit down and think about its message, either. Produced under the notion that what appeals to 12-year olds should appeal to everyone, it is an easy-going story about small-town America.

Hayley Mills has received well-deserved praise for her performance in the title role. The daughter of British actor John Mills, she comes complete with British accent and excuse for it written into the script. Supporting Miss Mills are a number of stars, all with many years more experience, including Jane Wyman, Richard Egan, Karl Malden, Nancy Olson, Adolphe Menjou, Donald Crisp and Agnes Moorehead. They are all dumped into a small town in the Midwest and Pollyanna proceeds to take her toll.

In case you haven't guessed it and haven't seen the advertisements, it should be mentioned that "Pollyanna" is a Walt Disney production and, of course, is in color. David Swift both directed and wrote the script. The production is designed to tug at a few heart-strings, perhaps, but rend none.

Strangers When We Meet (July 27 - August 2) offers something for everyone: for the men there's Kim Novak and Barbara Rush; for the women, Kirk Douglas; for scandal-lovers, an illict love affair; and for those who are tired of sex-ridden tales of marital infidelity, Ernie Kovacs. Kovacs plays an eccentric author, for whom a mountaintop bachelor's house is being designed by Douglas.

When Kovacs isn't adding his moments of lightness, Douglas spends his time visiting with next-door-neighbor Miss Novak, leaving his wife, Miss Rush, at home. There is also some trouble with another neighbor, Walter Mattau, who has ideas of his own. Somehow Hollywood manages to extricate everybody from this mess.

Douglas, Miss Novak and Miss Rush bring their regular attractions to this otherwise sickly production. "Strangers When We Meet" is in CinemaScope and Color.

IT'S NEW To Us

BUT CATHALINA WAS WRONG

Picture Detecting. When Cathaline Lambert was assembling his collection of paintings, he bought one from Durand-Ruel which was sold as a Jan Van Goyen. It was also sold as a Van Goyen when the Lambert collection went on the block in 1916. Last year, it was bought by The Leopard's Head from the man who had acquired it when the Lambert collection was sold.

The Schusters at The Leopard's Head had it cleaned, and then began to suspect it. They decided it looked "too romantic" too many fluffy clouds and one too many boats, and a certain shimmer not usually present in a Van Goen (he painted in the mid-17th century). Besides, there was no date on any of the lower right hand boats, and that's where Van Goyen characteristically dated his paintings.

Becoming more and more curious about their possession, the Schusters pored through art books and looked at slides, but saw nothing of van Goyen's that looked like their scene. They offered it to a big auctioneer who said, politely, that he "had no time to get it into a sale," which served to confirm their suspicions that it was not the McCoy.

Finally, they sent it to England, where a restorer examined it, compared the brush-work with Van Goyen brush work and then compared the painting as a whole with the works of John Crome, the early 19th century artist who achieved immortality by lending his name to "cromo." The 17th century "Van Goyen" turned out to be an authentic early 19th century Cromo, quite as valuable, in its own way, as though it had been what everybody once thought it was.

The painting, now on display and for sale at The Leopard's Head, is a pleasant view of a Dutch canal and countryside; or, to be quite accurate about it, a Scotch artist's idea of what the Dutch countryside probably looked like.

So buy yourself a painting — and a conversation piece as well.

If you want quite a different genre and mood, The Leopard's Head has a charming 19th century Japanese water color by Bain of Nagoya called Procession of Insects. It shows a parade of insects, each about an inch high, trudging diagonally across a piece of paper. There are grasshoppers (some carrying baskets), a snail getting a ride in a cage, some ants, a single moth and two ladybug stragglers at the bottom.

Three carved wood Buddhas, their gold leaf stained red-bronze by incense, sit in serene contemplation on the shelf. Buy them invididually, or in trio. A 16th century bronze Buddha, gilded is a play of gold and black shadow. A Cambodian statue, gilded, wears the traditional cap of snails.

Our favorite for summer leaves behind the solemnity of Buddhas and the cloak and dagger of picture detecting. It's a hanging bunch of grapes which once served as a vintner's logotype.

Each round black grape has been hand carved and impaled on a peg to make a dangling 12-inch cluster. In the middle there is a pocket for the wine bottle, so you can pack the bunch with ice and keep your champagne cold. The container is suspended from the ceiling by three black metal chains.

WHY, IT'S A BABY ORLON!

And Wool, Too. Orlon combines with so many things in so many different garments that one might almost think of the orlon as a shy creature who lives above timberline in the fastness of the New Jersey rockies.

In the instance we are about to mention, somebody has sheared him and combined his "wool" with Australian lambs wool to make a pale bone beige sweater, narrowly ribbed, and fashioned with three-quarter cuffed sleeves and a deeply banded crew neck. Bailey's is the store, $4.95 is the price. Stock up, as they say, for fall.

Red Coats Coming?

One of the handsomest one-of-a-kinders on the rack at Bailey's in the Princeton Shopping Center is a wool houcle coat in the kind of red that looks hot now, but will look absolutely dynamic when the weather finally gets cold enough to wear it.

The coat ($69.50) is cut with a rather full back skirt, a fullness achieved by small side pleats. The same effect is repeated in front. There are deep raglan sleeves and a collarless neckline which looks a bit more finished if you wear around it the separate ascot that comes with the coat and is made from the same fabric. It buttons with a big, black button.

Four big, black buttons punctuate the bodice and appear again on the skirt. There are four of them, as a matter of fact, on the right side of the coat skirt. Very off-beat and eye-catching. Use the slim slot pockets for car keys.

Blousemaker, a competitor to Ship 'n Shore, makes a fine white all-cotton (Dan River) blouse with roll-up sleeves and that kind of collar which is really McMullen, but which you can't call McM. unless it's on one of their dresses. You know the kind. Cost: $3.98, in white only.

A summer-into-fall dress is Bailey's paisley cotton with the peisley "comma" imprisoned in very small circles. It has an olive tan background with a tab that goes under the pointed Peter Pan collar, and roll-up sleeves. Mr. Bailey's price is $10.95.

Pima broadcloth, soft as an old linen handkerchief, makes a shirt dress of pale willow grey-green, with a yellow appliqued flower on the breast pocket. It has unpressed pleats, very wide, a self belt and an open-throated collar.

One of the most useful fall suits you could own is a two-piecer consisting of short-sleeveyd dress with tucked cummerbund, and double-breasted bell-boy jacket with three-quarter sleeves. The jacket buttons make a "V" to point down a narrow waist. The fabric is a grey Glen plaid.

Cotton and dacron polyester have been used in another suit, this one classic in cut. There's a straight and narrow skirt and a short, loose man-tailored jacket, both in olive grey-green, dark and sensible.

If you're feeling frivolous, wear that same skirt with a mustard cable slipover sweater, knit with deep oval neck bonded with light and dark grey and the same mustard in one-inch bands.

"Tomorro" by Warner, is a white cotton bra designed with elastic "power net" which contracts and expands to provide the maximum in individual fit. $2.50.

Permalift has Magicool, a girdle made of some rubber material which has 50,000 pores, or 150 to the square inch. (Know what we did all weekend? Counted. 25,674, 25,675—pretty slowly it goes with all those little pores.)

This is a very cool girdle (panty or regular) for summer and it will not split, which is an advantage any way you look at it. Costs $8.95 or $9.95 depending on style.

WHAT'S FOR THE EAR?

New Radio, Records. At the Princeton Music Center on Palmer Square, we found the Radio of the Year (summer version). It's a West German Nordmende in a semi-pigskin carrying case that makes it look like a handbag. AM-FM, short wave.

Carry it around so you'll have music to walk to, then take it with you on your next excursion to the shore, plugged into the antenna of your car. Plays just as well riding as walking or standing still, $99.95.

That Japanese six-transistor radio at $32.50 is an all-time summer favorite. Music Center has it, complete with earphone, carrying case and batteries for $32.50.

In the record department, the Center likes the new Weavers album, presenting the folk singers in volume two of their Carnegie Hall set. "There Once Was a Young Man Who Went to the City", a new folk song called "On My Journey" ("new" folk song?), and so on.

Those with different tastes will buy the Maureen Forrester-Richard Lewis "Song of the Earth." The Mahler work is recorded with Reiner and the Chicago Symphony who also do the Mahler Fourth Symphony, with Lisa Della Casa.

Miss Forrester appears again with Munch and the Boston Symphony in "Songs of a Wayfarer."

News Of The Theatres

muscleman Steve Reeves stars in the title role.

It's a pity that more effort wasn't put into the film itself and less into the publicity (H-e-r-c-u-l-e-s U-n-c-h-a-i-n-e-d goes the echo chamber on television and radio). The plot is thin — little more than excuse for classical name-dropping (Ulysses, the giant Anineus, King Oedipus, Elocles and Polynices and Queen Omphale), plus the exhibition of a number of classical-proportioned figures, both male and female — and the acting isn't any better. Along the way, Hercules has the opportunity to demonstrate his prowess against both wild animals and men.

Color is by Eastman color, with English dubbed-in. A ballad "Evening Star," written by Mitchell Parish, is sung by June Valli.

Ask Any Girl (July 25 - 27) features Shirley MacLaine, David Niven and Gig Young, all of them in fine form, in a perceptive and witty satire on motivation research, ad agencies, New York night life, women's residence hotels, the Beat Generation and just about everything else that happens to pass across the screen. The film made its first Princeton appearance at the Playhouse just a year ago.

The plot is simple: Miss MacLaine, an intriguing but innocent dish from Wilkes-Barre, comes to the big city to find whatever it is girls from Wilkes-Barre come to the big city to find. After fending off a number of tweeded wolves, she takes a job smoking cigarettes for an ad agency which is doing motivation research on a strawberry-flavored filter. Her bosses are a pair of brothers, Niven and Young. Shirley falls in love with Young. When her affection is not returned, she gets together with Niven and the two of them apply the principles of the hidden persuaders in an effort to bring Young around.

It's all done at a fast pace and the principals are suppo hy a fine script by GeirgeWiels. Miss MacLaine is particulary entrancing, displaying the combination of elfin naivete and frank sexiness that has served her so well in the last year or two. The film is in CinemaScope and color. Recommended.

BERMAN STARS

In Bucks County Production. Shelley Berman, the "overnight success" after ten years of acting, is playing one of the leading roles in "The Mirror Under the Eagle," a new play by Philip C. Lewis, which opened at the Bucks County Playhouse Monday. It will run through Saturday, July 30.

The play, which had its world premiere in New Hope, marks the 100th production there by Michael Ellis. Agnes de Mille is directing, her first such assignment in a summer theatre, and Philip Bourneuf and Frances Reid star with Mr. Berman.

The play details the growth of the theatre in this country from Puritan times to Tennessee Williams. Scenes from "Our Town" and "Death of a Salesman" are included, as well as comic and musical presentations. Jeanne Armin, Patrick Cummings, Bill Inglis and Betty Low are featured in the cast.

IT'S BERMAN AGAIN: "The Mirror Under the Eagle", now at the Bucks County Playhouse, stars Shelley Berman, TV comedian and recording star.

William Goldenberg has composed the original music, and the costumes and backstage background are by Motley.

This Friday at 2 p.m., "Heidi," adapted and directed by Constance Loux, will be presented at the Playhouse. The three-act play has seven cast members from the Playhouse Apprentice Staff.

CAROUSEL PLAYING

At Music Circus, "Carousel," the current offering at the Lambertville Music Circus, will play each night through Sunday. The star role of Billy Bigelow in the Rodgers and Hammerstein show is taken by Art Matthews, a former barker himself.

Mr. Matthews, a graduate of Northwestern University, paid his way through college by working as a cowboy and wrangler in Montana, and began his professional career as an entertainer-host at a guest ranch in the same state. He played in the off-Broadway revival of "Leave It To Jane" during the show's year-long run.

Feature roles are played by Janice Lothian as Julie, L. D. Clements as Mr. Snow, Marie Critteden as Carrie, Linda King as Mrs. Mullins and Bob Roman as Jigger. Choreography is by Edward Earle and the production is under the direction of Louis Macmillan.

Monday night jazz concerts will include Bobby Hackett and his sextet on July 25, and the Dukes of Dixieland on August 1. Reservations and tickets can be obtained by calling the Music Circus' box office, EXport 7-1500.

Report from THE MAYOR

Pedestrians Are Always Right. This report is being written on a sidewalk bench facing a pedestrian cross-walk in a small Southern California town.

Every motorist that passes understands and practices the law with respect to pedestrian safety. There are no traffic lights — but a pedestrian stepping onto a cross-walk is a signal for all vehicular traffic to halt.

Elsewhere, the "walk-wait" signals that have been forbidden Princeton's busy intersections are common, and can be seen throughout the west and middle west. The Mayor will try again to persuade our State officials that they are worth a try!

We can learn much from the West about the rights of pedestrians and the handling of in-town traffic. They can, just as surely, learn from the East with respect to high-speed high-way travel. California, this year, has its first speed limit — 65 miles per hour — and even when the limit is observed, the weaving in and out and close following of cars produces a high accident rate.

Road Problems. Western towns share Princeton's road problems, and many of them are more acute than ours. Los Angeles, with its great freeway system, has abandoned the hope that it can solve its problems on streets and roads. It is about to embark on a program of rail transit — and is even weighing the monorail type system which is operated at Disnyland in Anosheim. Princeton commuters should follow these developments with interest!

Hands Across the Continent. Yesterday, we visited with Mrs. Mervin Taylor, mother of Princeton's Mrs. Rita Schrank. Rita's parents have completed five years' service in Disneyland.

The Mayor was happy to report on the daughter's many community services in Princeton, including her effective efforts in behalf of the coming program of United Nations Week activities under Chairman William MacCalmont's direction.

Two Princetons. The California map shows two "Princetons" in that state. We have not yet found a Californian who was aware of this fact — nevertheless, we have not found a native Californian who had not learned a great deal about the New Jersey Princeton! Many thought it was a town about the size of Philadelphia or Los Angeles.

As one Californian said: "It must be that big or it wouldn't be so well known." The Census Bureau has "shrunk" us, but our reputation continues to grow!

PLAYGROUNDS ACTIVE

Directors Report. Princeton area playground activities were filled last week with a variety of programs, according to reports from the directors of the several play areas. Mrs. Jane Hady, who is directing the Littlebrook playground, reports that Ricky Goetz won the pet show with his pet hamster. Glen Johnson's dog, "Inkie", won the blue ribbon in the dog show at the same playground.

The Marquand Park "Olympics" were won last week by the white team headed by Tony Hazelhurst, according to Ann Vance, director of Marquand play activities. The "Olypics" consisted of running, broad jumps, wheel barrow race, speed race, bean bag accuracy throwing, three-legged race, shot put and pick up sticks. Other members of the winning team were Nickie Sarett Debbie Brenn, Jane Murphy, Alice Carter, Mark Hill and Robbie Holt.

The new Grover Avenue playground featured boat races, an art contest and a variety contest, according to director William Vajk. Edward Rickett won the boat race, Lisa Navi received first place in the art contest, while Ricky Diafori and Robert Cohen won the bubble gum blowing section of the variety contest. Robert Cohen also won the the variety event, and Louis Balesteri won the cracker eating contest.

A dog show held at Harrison Park playground resulted in a blue ribbon for Jimmy Garrison's dog, "Butch." Plans are being made for a "gift tree." Bill Russell won the "home run derby" at the Riverside playground last week, while Barbara Kienzle, Kathy Redding and Diane Donaldson won the Erdman Avenue playground's dog show.

Carol Sinkler won a "pin the tail on the donkey" contest at the Valley Road playground last week. Other Valley Road activities included checkers, chess, ping pong, horseshoes, story telling, handicraft, and softball. Future events at Valley Road include a poster contest.

A championship zelhall tournament is underway at the High School playground. Tony Perone, Richie Volz, John Wheeler and Tony Preaccini have reached the semi-finals. Other activities included a peanut hunt and poster making.

TWO JOIN STAFF

At Princeton Hospital. Two new physicians have joined Princeton Hospital's Medical and Dental Staff. They are Dr. William F. Haynes, Jr., and Dr. Robert J. Fischer.

Dr. Haynes has joined the Associate Medical Staff with privileges in internal medicine, while Dr. Fischer has joined the Consulting Dental Staff with privileges in oral surgery. A graduate of Princeton University, Dr. Haynes received his M.D. from Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1954. He served for the year following his graduation as an intern at St. Luke's Hospital in New York and subsequently spent three years in the U. S. Navy as a ship's medical officer.

SCIENCE
In Princeton

MORE SCIENTIFIC FIRMS

Two for Pearson Office. Two scientific firms, both in related analytical fields, are taking over the space at 55 State Road that was formerly the offices of Harold Pearson, builder. One, Dodco Inc., has already moved in, while the other, Space Technology Inc., plans to occupy its office someume in September.

Dodco, which moved to Princeton from Trenton, where it had offices at the Mercer County Airport, specializes in system and trajectory analysis, working primarily for the government. The other new tenant, Space Technology, is a West Coast corporation which plans to set up an eastern branch. It specializes in control systems.

Formed about four years ago by its president, Daniel O. Dommasch, Dodco is concerned primarily in the fields of aeronautics and astronautics. In its 1350 square feet on State Road, Dodco houses a staff of eight plus two digital computers. It has left its business office in Blawenburg.

Although details on the proposed Space Technology operation are not available, it appears that it could probably put four to five people to work in the 900 square foot office behind Dodco. According to Mr. Dommasch, the two firms decided to occupy the space independently, although they are in fairly similar fields.

NEW GENERATOR FROM RCA

Converts Heat to Electricity. An improved generator for converting electricity directly from heat has been developed by scientists at the David Sarnoff Research Center of the Radio Corporation of America. The electronic device, which has no moving parts and operates on ordinary fuels, will have immediate application for scientific and military purposes and ultimately might be used for automobiles and homes.

According to H. W. Leverenz, 35 Westcott Road, director of research at the laboratory, the generator combines simplicity with the highest efficiency achieved by such direct-conversion devices working at temperatures produced by ordinary fuels, such as gasoline and natural gas. He termed it a "major advance" in research on direct power conversion.

Although the new device, technically known as a thermionic energy converter, was developed primarily for converting solar heat to energy in space, it could also be used as a power generator for submarines, aircraft, and missiles. The RCA tube might also be employed in combination with other energy converters to run an automobile, according to the developers.

Until now, tubes of this type have operated efficiently only from special heat sources, while other thermionic devices have required extremely critical construction to operate at temperatures produced by ordinary fuels. The RCA tube is claimed to be simple enough to be economically mass-produced.

Cesium Vapor Device. The principle of the device is that the cesium vapor, which fills the tube, splits into positively and negatively charged particles when heated. These can be employed to produce an electric current.

While ordinary cesium converters have required temperatures of over 2000 degrees Centigrade (60 times as hot as boiling water), the RCA generator operates at only 1100 degrees Centigrade. This is possible through a new arrangement of the tube's innards and the use of a new material for one important element.

About 34 percent of the heat energy put into the tube is turned into electricity. It produces alternating current (the type found in most households, as opposed to the direct current produced by batteries) at frequencies up to about 1,000,000 cycles per second.

The tube was developed by Dr. Karl H. Hernqvist, working under an RCA contract from the Air Force Cambridge (Mass.) research Center, supported by the Advance Research Projects Agency of the Department of Defense. Its development was part of a continuing program which earlier produced a special electrical generator working directly from the exhaust heat of a rocket.

FUND DRIVE ENDING

For Radcliffe College. Nineteen Radcliffe alumnae and six parents of Radcliffe students in the Princeton area are currently completing a two-year personal solicitation canvassing project for the college's Ten-Year Development Fund. The percentage of donors and the average gift of each donor are at present well above the national average for the Radcliffe campaign.

Begun in 1955, the Ten-Year drive has raised $6,150,000 so far almost two-thirds of its goal of ten million dollars. Mrs. Archibald Crossley, chairman of the Princeton area drive in 1959 and Mrs. Alexander Leitch, this year's chairman, were assisted in their activities by 16 others.

They are: Mrs. Aldo Andreotti, Mrs. John Bonner, Mrs. Mylvain Bromberger, Mrs. Murray Burklund, Mrs. E. Parker Hayden, Mrs. Laurence Holland, Mrs. Darrell Johnson, Mrs. Loren Johnston, Mrs. Henry Lewis, Mrs. Milo Wadlin, Mrs. John Wheeler, Miss Letitia Wheller, all of Princeton; Mrs. Paul Yivisaker of Cranbury; and Mrs. William Geer of Lawrenceville.

Chairman of the parents' committee is Mrs. Douglas McNeil. She is assisted by Mrs. Harold Gulliksen, Mrs. John Rudd, Mrs. Barton Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Busselle.

The Luck of No. 13

Unit 13 of the First Aid and Rescue Squad had a fast and desperate 45 minutes last Friday, tracking and re-tracking across Borough and Township to answer three calls within the space of three-quarters of an hour.

At 12:31, the unit was dispatched to the home of Martin Katz on Snowden Lane in a futile attempt to revive a drowning swimmer. (See story page 4.) At 12:50, while the unit was still at the Katz home, its driver received a call from Township Police that a man had fallen off a ladder on Harrison Street. The unit left the Katz home, drove to the Harrison Street address and took the injured man to Princeton Hospital.

At 1:16 p.m., while the unit and its members were still at the Hospital, a call came from the Princeton Swim Club, Penns Neck, where a swimmer had been injured at the pool, and the First Aid truck sped there to administer first aid.

It would be a poorer community without such a volunteer unit.

Obituaries

George B. Opdycke, 90, of Penns Neck Road died July 13. A retired carpenter, Mr. Opdycke had been a Princeton resident for 35 years.

He was the husband of the late Emma Bowman Opdycke. Surviving are two sons, Harold of Trenton and Lloyd A. of Princeton; two grandchildren and four greatgradchildren.

The service was held in Flemington, with the Rev. Lynn Creighton of Flemington Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment was in Quakertown.

Francis Kiernan, 65, of North Post Road, Princeton Junction, died July 15. A foreman for the Pennsylvania Railroad, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Kiernan; two sons, Gerald M. of Princeton Junction and Frederick F. of Plainsboro; two daughters, Mrs. Julia Toth and Mrs. George Luther Jr. of Princeton Junction; and five great-grandchildren.

The service at the Kimble Funeral Home was followed by requiem high masa in St. Paul's Church. Interment was in the parish cemetery.

Miss Eunice E. Lippincott, 89, a former resident of the Peacock Inn, died July 16. Miss Lippincott had been a substitute teacher at Princeton and Trenton High Schools and was previously mistress of the Anabel School for Girls in New Brunswick.

Services were held at Trinity Episcopal Church, with the Rev. Francis C. Huntington officiating. Interment was to be in Long Branch, under the direction of the Mather Funeral Home.

TO HOLD DINNER

On July 23. The second annual dinner of the Cooperative Nursery School Association, Inc., of Franklin Park will be held Saturday, July 23, at 8 p.m. The affair will take place at the Log Cabin Inn on Route 1.

The dinner will provide nursery school parents with an opportunity to meet socially with the parents of their children's school friends. To make reservations, alumni or friends of the Cooperative Nursery School should contact Mrs. L. De Sena of 7 Pelham Road.

COMMITTEE FORMED

For United Nations Week. Officers of the Citizens' Committee to plan observance of United Nations week have been elected. At the organizational meeting of the new committee, held at the YMCA Building, Dr. William F. MacCalmont was elected chairman.

Other new officers are: Dr. Glen Simmons, vice-chairman; Mrs. Glen Schenk, co-vice-chairman; Mrs. Frances Allison, recording secretary; and Mrs. Oliver Overseth, corresponding secretary. Committee chairmen are: Dr. Robert van de Velde, program; Dr. Chester Stroup, speakers; Mrs. Stephen Kidd, coordinating; Dr. Earl Douglass, advisory; and John Criscetiello, publicity.

The committee chairman, along with the newly-elected officers, will function as a steering committee for the group. The essential purpose of the committee is, according to Dr. MacCalmont, "to support and strengthen the work of the United Nations, making this a significant community project."

According to the new chairman of the group, the organization will not permit itself to become involved in controversy on any specific issue, but will always keep before it the overall purpose and function of the U.N." Dr. MacCalmont declared that the U.N. deserves "the support of all American citizens."

The committee will not permit itself "to be" Formed at the suggestion of Mayor Raymond F. Male, the committee hopes to encourage all organizations to use the structure of the Citizens' Committee to provide special programs and speakers to highlight the work of the United Nations in the Princeton community.

The Committee emphasizes that the Week of October 23 is United Nations week, and hopes that Princeton groups will schedule special programs on the subject of the U.N. and its work during that period. All organizations are invited to obtain representation on the Citizens' Committee.

The Committee's second meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. this Thursday at the YMCA Building. At that time, reports will be presented by the chairmen of the various committees and special attention will be given to the program committee's proposals.

POPULATION GROWING

In Larence Township. The population of Lawrence Township is increasing at a rate of more than 1,600 per year, according to a report issued by Mrs. Marie B. Loveless, township clerk and registrar of vital statistics. In her report, Mrs. Loveless notes that preliminary census figures show a population gain of more than 60 percent in the past ten years.

Although the township has grown from 8,499 in 1960 to the present figure of 13,620, the pace of births, deaths and marriages has remained virtually the same during the same ten-year period, the report shows. Records for the first six months of 1956 and 1960 show 102 births, with slight variations in the intervenng years.

From her statstics, the township clerk concludes that the population rise is due principally "to the continuing attraction of new residents into the township from other communities." A tabulation compiled by Mrs. Loveless for the first six months of 1956 through 1960 shows deaths varying from a high of 61 to a low of 43, marriages, 61 to 42, while the high and low birth rates during that period range from 118 to 102.

ALL ABOUT LAWRENCE

Booklet Describes Township. A booklet describing Lawrence Township is being distributed free of charge to residents of the Township by the four Democratic candidates for public office: Samuel A. DeGasperis and William L. Hunter, who are running for Township Committee; Peter J. Russo, who is seeking the office of assessor and Marie B. Loveless who is running for clerk. The Lawrence Township Democratic Club has met all costs of publishing the pamphlet.

ship, including the time and place of regular meeeings of various boards, commissions and committees and the names of their members. (The sponsoring candidates have pointed out one error in the publication: the Board of Education meets the second Monday of each month, not the third.)

In addition, the directory gives the location of public and parochial schools, churches, polling places and volunteer fire companies. There is a large Township map, and a brief history of the community from 1798, when it was formally constituted as a political division under the name "Maidenhead," through its re-naming (for Captain James Lawrence) to the present.

INSECT DISCOVERED

Poses Threat To Lawns. The European chafer, an insect pest which poses a potential threat to lawns, pastures, hay crops, forage crops and small grains, has been discovered in New Jersey for the first time. According to an announcement by William M. Boyd, chief of the Bureau of Entomology of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture, the insect was first found in the vicinity of Jersey City two weeks ago.

The damage to crops and lawns is done by the larval or grub form of the insect, which feeds on the roots of grasses. The adult, a light tan-colored beetle, is not dangerous. The pest is believed to have been imported from France with shipments of plant materials and was first discovered in this country in 1940.

Widely scattered throughout Europe, the chafer is not immune to control measures. According to Mr. Boyd, various insecticides applied to the soil in the same manner used to control the grubs of the Japanese beetle have proved effective.

In New Jersey, the first European chafer was found at Caven Point, which is located on the Hudson River waterfront between Jersey City and Bayonne. It was subsequently located at two exits of the New Jersey Turnpike Extension, which crosses Newark Bay.

SEE CUBA IN LARGER CONTEXT: Three articulate young men agree that any action the United States takes with respect to Fidel Castro's Cuba should be with the larger problems of Latin America in mind. The group includes Robert Wren, instructor in theatre arts at Harpur College, Binghamton, N. Y.; Edmund F. Baxter Jr., a chemist with Esso; and T. H. Long, a graduate student.

Question of the Week

Question: What action do you think this country should take with respect to Fidel Castro?

Where asked: Around town.

Edmund F. Baxter Jr., Cranford, chemist at Esso's Linden operation: My feeling is that the United States is in an embarrassing situation. We have the problem that we are a big country. We must be careful of any move which might put us back into the Teddy Roosevelt era of imperialism. It was completely unwarranted of Castro to seize the oil refineries, but it is also truly regrettable that a combination of factors has resulted in the cutting of the sugar quota to Cuba, with 30 per cent of the residue being taken up by the Dominican Republic. This is certainly the last government in Latin America I would think the United States should prop up in this way. We should work through the Organization of American States, where we should not present resolutions against Cuba but should support them if presented by others. In any case, the principles of the Monroe Doctrine must be upheld in this and all other situations.

Bob Wren, 145 Ewing Street, instructor in theatre arts at Harpur College, Binghamton, N.Y.: It's too late to do much but work as closely as possible with the Latin American states in dealing with the problem. The situation involves too many changing factors to be more specific. The big problem is not Cuba but the rest of Latin America, especially Mexico, and our relations thereto.

Mrs. H. L. Lovell, 23 Prospect Avenue, housewife: "We don't want war, but I think we must watch closely to see that Russia doesn't succeed in agitating Castro too greatly. I think the Russians are causing Castro to make the disturbances he's making, and I think we should be on our guard.

T. H. Long, 601 Lake Drive, graduate student and onetime visitor to Cuba: I don't know, but I do know that in the fall the Cubans seemed to be 100 percent behind him. I was a college instructor in New Orleans then, and all the Cubans I knew seemed to support Castro completely. On the other hand, we should do everything to keep Russian influence out of Cuba. If we make it clear we won't tolerate it, there is perhaps less chance of any serious interference. I would suggest getting the support of other Latin American countries.

Dr. Durant W. Robertson, 24 Mercer Street, professor of English at Princeton University: Be patient.

Mrs. William E. Gordon, 80 Linden Lane, secretary and housewife: We should issue strong, long-overdue diplomatic warnings to the Cuban government and its supporters that the United States will protect the lives and property of American citizens in Cuba and state what our actions will be. I do think that our retaliation in the way of a blockade was a step in the right direction. I am reminded of a remedy in chastising a precocious child — a pat on the back, low enough, hard enough and early enough.

Martin Rubin, 130 Nassau Street, proprietor of the Wright Store: The United States should take a lot stronger stand than we have been taking so far. We should place all economic sanctions we can possibly think of on Cuba, and we should markedly change our attitude toward the rest of the Latin American countries. This will make it more difficult for Castro to sway those countries. We need a hard, tough, decisive policy toward Cuba with some backbone in it.

Joseph A. Balestena, Creamridge, hair stylist: I was born in Cuba, and I dislike Castro intensely. Yours is a difficult question. We need firm action, but we cannot afford to alienate the other Latin American countries. We must make Castro realize that he holds a unique position in Latin America, and that he should not be merely a mouthpiece for the Communists.

Mrs. William E. Gordon, 740 Princeton - Kingston Road, housewife: I think he should be dealt with as though he were half-crazy. We just have to use a great deal of psychology and make sure that it doesn't develop into something much bigger than it should. I am absolutely in favor of our actions in curtailing sugar imports from Cuba.

Willie A. Grady, 144 Witherspoon Street, general maintenance man: Shoot him. The man's no good. He's asking for war and who wants to go to war?

Dr. David H. Greenstein, 130 Nassau Street, optometrist: I wish I knew what action we should take. We should not overlook the bad publicity we've been getting in Latin and South America. We should remember that Castro has received a vote of confidence from Mexico, and just recently from Argentina. While I feel badly about the injuries Castro has done to the United States, I believe we should follow a hands off policy. What little property the United States has left in Cuba has just about gone down the drain. If we interfere, we open ourselves to charges of imperialism. I also feel that perhaps Castro ought to be given a chance. He's certainly better for Cuba than that gangster Batista. Although it yet remains to be proved, Castro may be good for Cuba. We should do nothing right now.

MEET THE PRESS

Math to Michaelangelo. The arrival in Princeton later this summer of Arthur Link, the noted historian who will edit the collected papers of Woodrow Wilson, serves to focus attention on the various scholarly and commercial activities of the Princeton University Press, which will bring out Dr. Link's volumes as they become ready for publication.

The Wilson project is, of course, similar to the Thomas Jefferson project which has been the Press' largest undertaking so far. Dr. Julian P. Boyd's first volume of the Jefferson papers was published in 1950. The University Press has so far brought out 15 of the projected 52 volumes of Jefferson's writings which Dr. Boyd will edit.

Although these two programs are large ones, both in prestige and in the volume of work involved, they are not completely representative of the kind of books published by the Princeton University Press. Actually, the Press specializes more in higher mathematics, political studies of Southeast Asia, subjects concerning the Near East, art history, physics and history — especially French history.

"Whenever you do good things in a field of study, you tend to stay in that field and to do more," observes Herbert Bailey, Jr., director of the Press. Bailey, Jr., is about five years age that Southeast Asia was the 'coming' area, so to speak, and the Press has been doing a lot of work in that field ever since. We've had books like 'Ceylon: The Dilemmas of a New Nation'; 'Foreign Aid: Theory and Practice in Southern Asia;' 'The Politics of the Developing Areas', and so on."

About 50 new titles come from the presses each year, representing some 160,000 books. Of these approximately 25 percent go abroad for sale, a high percentage, Mr. Bailey says. The Princeton University Press is probably the largest of all university presses from the point of view of foreign distribution. Otherwise, the press ranks about fourth or fifth in size.

"We're not trying to expand," Mr. Bailey says with a smile.

THE WORKING PRESS: Editors, printers, type-setters, typographers, salesmen, proof-readers and secretaries are all important in the day-to-day operation of The Princeton University Press. Herbert S. Bailey, Jr. (center), Director of the Press, looks over a new volume with his secretary, Mrs. Jean Busch, who has been with the Press for almost 50 years, and P. J. Conkwright, internationally known typographer who has brought the Press many prizes in design. Approximately 100 people work in the Press buildings on William and Charlton Streets. (Staff Photo.)

Press Is 55 Years Old. Contrary to what most Princeton residents think when they see the low, grey Gothic complex at the corner of William and Charlton, the University Press is quite separate from Princeton University, and it always has been.

It was established in 1905 by a gift from the Scribner publishing house and Charles Scribner, Jr., is now president. It is, of course, a non-profit corporation with goals and policies which are quite different from those of the standard commercial publishing house.

"We always lose money, in spite of all our efforts not to", says Mr. Bailey. "Our deficits are made up largely from Foundation grants; for example, that book on Ceylon we published this year was helped along by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation."

When Mr. Bailey speaks of the difference between the University Press and the usual commercial publishing house, he is referring of course to the fact that university presses publish works which have a limited readership and which may be extremely expensive to produce in terms of the number of copies liekly to be sold. Hence the deficits.

The 12-volume series on high speed aerodynamics and jet propulsion, for example, is an important item on the Press' schedule, but it will never see the best-seller list. The cost of editing, typesetting and proof-reading its detailed charts and formulae will be met only in part by the cost of the set as a whole.

These books, for example, cost about $30 a page compared to a University Press average of $7.50.

Another example of the "non-profit" volume is E. R. Hughes, "Two Chinese Poets," appearing on the 1960 spring list. This was not costly to produce, but it does have a limited audience. In addition to obscure volumes like this one, of course, the University Press publishes works such as Charles de Tolnay's "Michaelangelo: The Final Period," which achieved the lofty eminence of a front page review in the New York Times book section.

"If we had to be just like the trade publishers," Mr. Bailey comments, "it would be pointless for us to exist."

It's A Business. As a day-to-day operating business, however, the Univevrsity Press is like any trade house. There is an editorial board (composed of faculty members) which passes on all books after receiving reports from experts and members of the Press staff. Not many unsolicited manuscripts arrive at William Street; rather, the editorial board and the staff keep track of scholars and go after the best ones for their manuscripts.

Once a book is decided on, the advertising and sales department under John Criscitiello goes to work through direct mail, advertisements in magazines, catalogues and so on. Each book is then assigned to an editor, depending on its subject matter. R. Miriam Brokaw is managing editor of the press; Jay Wilcox is science editor, Harriet Anderson is fine arts editor, John Braeman is social science editor and Mrs. Matilda Finch and Miss Judy Walton are editors without specialty. Gordon Hubel is assistant to the director.

Princeton University Press is particularly proud of its typographer, P. J. Conkwright, who has been with the Press since 1939. Mr. Conkwright is internationally known as a typographer, and his books have won more honors in design from the American Institute of Graphic Arts than those of any other American designer.

The Press itself has won prizes for its books, including two Pulitzer prizes (George Kennan's "Russia Leaves the War," and Bray Hammond's "Banks and Politics in America"), a National Book Award, a Bancroft award in history and the Haskins medal of the Medieval Academy.

For Foreign Sale. Participation in the International Book Export Group has been one of the most rewarding projects undertaken by the Press in recent years. This group is composed of publishers who combine their efforts in order to sell books to booksellers abroad; in Asia, South America and the Far East.

"There is an immense desire for books all over these parts of the world," Mr. Bailey says. "At the big international fairs, you'll find people standing all day in front of an American book exhibit, reading the books they can't buy because they haven't the dollars. And even when currency exchange is provided, there just aren't enough books to meet the demand. The west is fighting a real running battle with Russia in this respect, you know, because Russia floods the market, even with children's books."

Mr. Criscitiello goes around the world every other year as a salesman for the eight publishing houses represented by the Group. Norvell B. Samuels, associate director of the Press, has been serving as chairman of the organization. He will leave the Press September 1 to become president of the American Book Publishing Co.

Although the Press no longer does outside commercial work, it does print the 30,000 copies of the Princeton Alumni Weekly which go out each week during the academic year and provide the University with its strongest single alumni contact.

The Weekly, edited by John Davies in what Mr. Bailey refers to as a "pleasantly controversial" way, is owned and operated on a non-profit basis by the Press.

Quiet, and Activity. The pleasant, cloistered courtyard off William Street gives little indication that an actual printing plant is situated in the rear, with its store-rooms of paper stock and its clattering press-room.

Five linotypes working in two shifts, two Mehle presses and two presses for small jobs take care of the work load. In addition to its own books and The Alumni Weekly, the press prints various scholarly journals, such as the Annals of Mathematics, and does work for some other university presses, notably Rutgers.

Binding is done in New York, except for small-scale binding for rare books or gift copies. Earl Smith is in charge of the Press bindery.

To save money, the Press sends abroad its technical manuscripts and any which include extensive tables. These are set in type in England, Germany and Holland. Bibliographies which have to set in many languages are also done on a farm-out basis because the presses at the University Press do not have all the necessary type characters. Cyrillic characters, for example are not available at the Press but many writers now use Roman letters for Russian words, so that the lack is not an important one.

We Cooperate. Although the University Press is a separate institution from Princeton University, there is the closest cooperation between the two; the Press seeks advice, criticism and manuscripts from the faculty and the faculty finds a window on the world in the activities of the Press.

The Press also seeks University support in building up its strength in areas where it has, so far, published only a few important volumes.

"We are confident," says Mr. Bailey, "that this close, working relationship with the faculty will continue."

HENRY FRANK INSTALLED

As New Post 76 Commander. Henry J. Frank of 273 Jefferson Road was installed last week as Commander of Post 76, American Legion. Mr. Frank succeeds Eric H. Jungberg.

A Legionnaire for 15 years, Commander Frank has been affiliated with post 76 for eight years and has been Service Officer since 1954. He also served four years as Graves Registration Officer and two as Mercer County Service Officer.

The incoming commander served as a lieutenant in the engineering corps during World War II and the Korean Conflict. He took part in the D-Day invasion of Normandy in 1944 and the subsequent campaigns in Normandy, northern France, the Rhineland and Central Europe.

Commander Frank is a graduate of Columbia University, holds a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Columbia University. He is a Research Associate in state and local government at Princeton University.

AIDES HELP OUT

At Princeton Hospital. Ten young women and three young men from the Princeton area have joined the summer aide program at Princeton Hospital, serving as special orderlies and summer helpers. They have received 40 hours of special training from Miss Anne Sweeney, Instructor of Aides, and are now working under the supervision of registered nurses.

Four of the girls are June graduates of Princeton High School. They are Christina Ruopp and Irene LeGoff of Lawrenceville, Katherine Steenrod, 129 Broadmead and Jean MacKenzie of Dutch Neck. Both Miss Ruopp and Miss MacKenzie plan nursing careers and Miss LeGoff plans to become a medical technician.

Barbara Hill, of Hopewell, a 1958 graduate of Princeton High, will enter the Columbia University School of Nursing this fall, and Irene Lau, Monmouth Junction, will return in the fall to Connecticut College as a sophomore in the pre-medical program.

Other aides are Patricia Ann Mount of Englishtown, who served in the program last year; Sharon Hurley of Hopewell; Jeanne Ford, Hightstown; and Anne Newsom of Yardley.

The three young men serving as orderlies are Douglas Ewing, 68 Laurel Road, Christopher Shannon, 28 Olden Lane and Anthony Breuer, 79 Parkside. Mr. Breuer plans on a medical career.

TWINS BORN AT HOSPITAL

Tenth Set This Year. Mr and Mrs. Stanley Steingas of 102 New Road, Franklin Park, became the parents of twins a boy and a girl, last Sunday. This was the tenth set of twins born at Princeton Hospital this year and brought the week's total of arrivals to 17.

Parents of sons include Mr. and Mrs. James MacLachlan, 3 Cranston Road, Franklin Park, July 10; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bruestle, Bear Brook Road, Princeton Junction, July 11; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph King, 122 Linden Lane, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Rogers Jr., 100 Stockton Street, July 13; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Saltzman, Cranbury, July 14; Mr. and Mrs. James Freer, 19 Maplewood Avenue, Cranbury, July 15; Mr. and Mrs. Sai-hai Lam, 44 South Stanworth Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Leff, 52 Cambridge Road, Franklin Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Catelli, Monmouth Junction, all July 16.

Parents of daughters are; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Cochrane Jr., 222-B Harrison Street, and Mr. and Mrs. John Michael, 143 North Main Street, Cranbury, July 10; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pinch, 198 Linden Lane, and Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lee, 201 Hun Road, July 15; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conrad, Line Road, Belle Mead, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Elson, 101 East Prospect Street, Hopewill, July 16.

ON TOP OF THE WORLD: There were about 450 teen-agers on Bamberger's roof Friday night at the High School Canteen Dance, some of them dancing, some star-gazing, and some just watching. Jed Berman and Carolyn Randall (top) take dancing very seriously; Diana Renz, Diana Coveleskie and Pamela Brunsvold have fun as on-lookers (but they danced, too). Canteen officers take time out for an official picture: (left to right) Lynne Marck, treasurer; Richard Traegler, president; George Russo, vice-president; Linda Salkin, secretary and (rear) George Dixon, Canteen director. Bottom left, Lawrence Ward and Toni Strode look at the other dancers with a critical eye; Lucille Toto and Dwight Wilkinson epitomize the general air of gaiety. (Staff Photos)

"Psycho" Criticized.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

I usually find that your film reviews are discriminating and reliable but must protest your lack of indignation with "Psycho."

Aside from objecting to the lurid shots and gory details, I objected to the basic concept of this film—that of exploiting diseases of the mind for "Show Biz" purposes. One of the most demoralizing scenes featured the psychologist's palatable analysis of the crimes, followed by an extended shot of Anthony Perkins sitting along with a fly crawling up his arm. This latter scene in which Perkins says, "They'll say I'm so gentle that I wouldn't harm a fly" perfectly demonstrates the childish attitude of "Nah Nah — you're nutty as a fruitcake" which prevailed throughout the picture.

Why should films which violate the sex mores of the community be censored and not a film as obscene (look up this word) as "Psycho." Alfred Hitchcock must at last be becoming affected by his despicable quest for "horror with that excruciating twist."

Mental illness, like any unfortunate and curious affliction of man, should be treated with delicacy, good taste, and with sincere desire to illuminate a serious problem. But this treatment, as I have previously stated, was "Show Biz" in the worst sense.

I hope this letter, like the condemnations of the Legion of Decency, will not send multitudes to the box office. If horror films must be produced, Dinasouras is harmless enough. At least the beasts, unlike Hitchcock, couldn't help themselves.

Trucks Protested Again.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

We have read with much interest the letters which have been appearing in your paper in the last few weeks regarding the lack of consideration of the drivers of trucks from the Kingston Trap Rock Company for others using the ronds. As they leave the plant early in the morning and come up the hill from Laurel Avenue towards Route 27 at Ten Mile Run, they follow each other so closely that it is almost impossible to pass them. As at this point, they are traveling about ten miles an hour, impatient drivers attempt to pass a line of them where it is impossible to see very far ahead and we daily expect a head-on collision in front of our property.

Also, as you can see from the copy of the letter to the Princeton Postmaster enclosed, we are in trouble with the mailman because the trucks use the shoulder of the road until they reach the top of the hill, sending up clouds of dust, and completely undoing the county's efforts to keep the road in safe condition. Black top the county put on the shoulder of the road just a few weeks ago is already completely broken up and practically invisible under the dust.

The shoulder of the road in front of our property does need filling and grading and the mailman is perfectly justified in his complaint. But we have already spent time, money and hard work on a hopeless undertaking.

Anne M. Mann
(Mrs. Lynn B. Mann)

RD 1, Princeton.

Editor's Note: The text of Mrs. Mann's letter to Postmaster Charles F. Murrey follows:

Some time ago a notice was left in our mailbox, requesting that the approach to it should be "filled and properly graded." We have given up any attempt to keep the shoulder of the road in front of our property built up as a "lost cause." Three or four times the Somerset County Road Department has built up the shoulder above our property so that, when we have heavy rains, all the crushed stone and dirt will not wash away. However, as the trucks from the Kingston Trap Rock Company insist on driving on the shoulder of the road, rather than on the road surface as they come up the hill from Laurel Avenue, they have undone all the work the County has undertaken for us.

There is simply no use in our spending money on filling in the shoulder of the road in front of our mail box unless the road above us can be kept built up, for the same thing happens during any heavy rain. If there is any way of forcing the trucks from Kingston Trap Rock Company to stay on the road surface and off the shoulder of the road, we will be glad to do what we can to rectify the condition. Apparently the heavily laden trucks can gain more traction if they use the shoulder coming up the hill. As fast as the Somerset County Road Department builds up the shoulder and covers it with black top the trucks have broken it down again. I assure you it's a losing proposition, as far as we are concerned.

Army Reserve Col. R. Kenneth Fnirman, Township mayor, is among 200 officers attending the second annual Defense Strategy Seminar at the National War College, Washington, D.C. The 14-day conference is designed to develop among a select group of reserve and National Guard officers an understanding of forces which sonstitute a danger to this country and to study counter measures. Participants are chosen from officers active in public affairs.

Miss Karen Smith, 29 Wilson Road, has returned from a year of study in Europe. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Datus C. Smith Jr., she spent last summer in Austria under the Experiment in International Living and then attended a special course at the Goethe Institute in Ebersberg, Germany, before beginning her studies at the University of Munich. Miss Smith will attend Serah Lawrence College during the coming year.

Walter Sorg has been appointed assistant general secretary of the Princeton YMCA, with special responsibility for the adult program, including recreation and physical education. Mr. Sorg, who has been secretary in charge of the youth program, will also serve as director of the swimming pool for the joint YMCA-YWCA swimming committee and will have related responsibility for building maintenance.

Miss Mary L. De Valliere, of Burnt Hill Road, was named to the honor roll for the spring quarter at Ohio State University. The listing includes undergraduates who achieved high academic standing for the period.

Dr. W. Donald Rugg, 92 Overbrook Drive, has been named to the Advisory Council of Princeton University's Department of Psychology. Dr. Rugg, who received his Ph.D Degree from Princeton in 1941, is a vice-president of Opinion Research Corporation.

Dr. Wendell R. Smith of 106 Crestview Drive, Corporate Director of Marketing Research and Development for RCA, will conduct a seminar in marketing at Rigi Kaltbad, Switzerland. The seminar is sponsored by the European Productivity Agency. Dr. Smith will be accompanied by his wife and daughters, Carolyn and Gail.

Miss Joan Ann Butterfoss of 249 Mt. Lucas Road has been awarded a scholarship to Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Butterfoss, Joan Ann is one of 72 members of next year's freshman class to receive a scholarship. Her scholarship was presented by the college on the basis of academic attainment in high school and on her performance on the College Entrance Examination Board scholastic aptitude tests.

Thomas H. Stix of 16 Deer Path has received a National Science Foundation Senior Post Doctoral Fellowship for study in Israel next year. Dr. Stix, who is currently associated with Princeton University's Project Matterhorn, was one of five American nuclear experts to tour the Soviet Union this month as part of the series of exchange visits by nuclear scientists between the two countries.

Two Princeton residents are listed among 20 New Jersey students who will receive financial assistance in their first year of study at Princeton University's Graduate College. James H. Kinsey of 14 Pine Street will receive financial aid from the graduate school as an assistant in research in aeronautical engineering, while Burton G. Malkiel of 84 Dempsey Avenue, will study economics under a Sarnoff Fellowship. More than 90 percent of the 376-man first-year class is receiving some kind of financial aid, Dr. Donald R. Hamilton, Dean of the Graduate School, announced.

WILL ATTEND VALPARAISO: Leanne Carol Leech, daughter of Mrs. Ruth R. Watson, 24 Derann Avenue, will enter the freshman class at Valparaiso University in Indiana, this September. She was graduated in June from Princeton High School.

Serving at the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station in Santa Ana, Calif., is seaman apprentice David R. Rodni, son of Mrs. Florence W. R. Tevacre of Princeton.

E. E. Smith of 156 Moore Street, general manager of the Chemical Division of the Climax Molybdenum Company in New York City, has completed New York University's Fifth Seminar in Retailing for Petroleum Executives. Designed to give students a view of the newest practices in many branches of retailing, the semi-annual seminar was presented by the NYU School of Retailing at the University's Washington Square Center.

Dr. and Mrs. Howard J. White, formerly of 64 Stanworth Lane, have moved to Los Altos, Calif. Dr. White, a former Research Director of the Textile Research Institute, will be associated with the Stanford Research Institute in Menlo Park, Calif.

Gordon Hall of Snowden Lane was one of 16 New Jersey Dairymen to be honored last week at the ninth annual June Dairy

INDEX PUBLISHED

For Second Quarter of 1960. TOWN TOPICS publishes this week the second installment in its new business feature, The Princeton Index, expanded to include figures on new car sales, unemployment compensation and a tabulation showing the percentage of change over the last quarter and over 1959. The current Index covers the April, May and June quarter with comparison figures for the January, February and March quarter and the corresponding spring quarter in 1959.

A slight decline in some categories from the first quarter of the year is a result of the traditional "summer slowdown" caused by the closing of the University and other educational institutions. Students and a proportion of the faculty discontinue their telephones, close out their checking accounts and stop buying stamps to write letters home. All of these factors are reflected in the figures shown on the table. Unemployment in Princeton traditionally goes up in July after the University's eating clubs are closed, but this swing is not shown by current figures.

+change in Borough bookkeeping procedures means that no meaningful figures available for spring quarter, 1960, or comparable quarter, 1959.

In the real estate field, the University's new junior faculty apartment project sends the value of building permits in the Township to a figure close to $3 million, compared to about $2 million a year ago and a scant $900,000 at the end of the slow winter construction season in March of this year.

In the "New Housing Starts" category, the 96 University faculty apartments are included as one unit in the 32 starts made in the Township during the past quarter. Generally, the building spurt in the municipality seems to have subsided, at least temporarily, with a 45 percent decline in new housing starts noted over last year. There is also a 30 percent decline in the number of property transfers in the Township, which indicates a levelling off of buying activity.

In contrast, the Borough, which is normally thought of as a "closed community," so far as available land is concerned, records a gigantic 140 percent increase in housing starts over June, 1959, and a corresponding 81 percent increase in building permits (these, of course, can mean a small addition to an existing structure).

New car sales, a classic indication of prosperity or lack of it, have remained fairly level, with a 10 per cent increase reported over last year, and an 18 percent rise over March, 1960.

ETS BUILDS AGAIN

Buildings, Addition Begun. Educational Testing Service has begun work on a $1 million project which will provide space for almost the entire ETS staff at its Rosedale Road headquarters. Included in the program are two buildings and an addition to the Operations Center.

Upon completion of the three structures, set for sometime next summer, 200 to 250 ETS staff members now at 20 Nassau Street will move out to consolidate the firm's operations on Rosedale Road. All that will be left elsewhere will be the shipping staff at Baker's Basin, and the personnel office and a research laboratory, which will remain at 20 Nassau Street.

The two new buildings under construction include a two-story structure for Test Development, Statistical Analysis and Research, and a one-story building about the size of the present cafeteria building, for the library, Advisory Service and Program Direction. These two, when combined with the new wing for the Operations Center, will provide an additional 56,000 square feet of floor space.

The buildings were designed by Harrison & Abramovitz of New York, architects for the original Rosedale buildings, and will be similar in style to buildings already on the site. Contractors for the project are Irwin & Leighton of Philadelphia.

DIRECTORS ADDED

By Chamber of Commerce. The Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce has added four members to its Board of Directors. The quartet all of whom will serve until December 31, are S. Phillip Marcus, Wallace W. McLean, Robert P. Popino and W. Donald Rugg.

Three members of the group are officers of research or manufacturing operations outside Princeton itself, while the fourth, Mr. Rugg, is vice-president of Opinion Research Corporation. Mr. Marcus is business manager of Food Machinery and Chemical Corporation Research and Development Center; Mr. McLean, president of McLean Engineering Laboratories; and Mr. Popino, manager of the Princeton plant of American Cyanamid Company.

Mr. Rugg, who lives at 92 Overbrook Drive, earned degrees from Cornell College, Iowa, the University of Rochester and Princeton University and joined ORC in 1942. Mr. Marcus a Trenton resident is a trustee of the United Community Fund and a member of the Rotary Club.

Mr. McLean, a 1941 graduate of Princeton University, serves as a director of General Devices, Inc., and executive vice-president of McLean Syntorque Corporation of West Hurley, N.Y. In addition to heading the American Cyanamid plant, Mr. Popino is president of the Board of Health of West Windsor Township, a trustee of the United Community Fund and a member of Rotary Club.

ORC ADDS STAFF MEMBER

As Associate Survey Director. Eugene E. Heaton Jr. has joined Opinion Research Corporation as an associate survey director. Mr. Heaton will work on studies for ORC's Public Index for Industry a research program on problems of concern of management.

The new ORC staff member received his B.A. degree from Swarthmore College and Master of Business Administration degree from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania. He lives at 113 West Broad Street, Hopewell.

PROMISING SOPHOMORE: Brad Urquhart, fullback and captain of the freshman team last year, is one of several members of his class on which Princeton is counting for varsity action this fall.

FOOTBALL OUTLOOK — II
This is the second of a series of four articles on Princeton football prospects for 1960.

Sophomore Strength Needed. No coach likes to depend on sophomores for a major contribution to the strength of his team, but in the upcoming fall of 1960, Dick Colman will have no other choice. The reasons are two:

In the first place, the graduated Class of 1960 left seven vacancies in the starting lineup to be filled, plus a number of key assignments in the reserve echelons. Secondly, the Class of 1962 —juniors this year—is one of Princeton's weakest football classes. It is quite unlikely that more than one of its members (guard John Craig) will be in at the kickoff for any of the Tigers' nine games this season.

The lion's share of the strength for Princeton's next football team must accordingly be furnished by the seniors, a good class that has a number of players of considerable ability. They cannot, however, assume the entire burden and, with the junior class as weak as it is, more than usual reliance must be placed on the sophomores.

An Ivy coach has said, "For every sophomore you have to start, you lose a football game." The implication is that no matter what the potential, the inexperience is such that errors the newcomer commits can make the difference in a close contest. The statement is a bit too pat to be wholly accurate, but there is little doubt that Princeton is in for some rough October afternoons while its sophomores mature.

Colman Sees Promise. About the Class of 1963, Colman has this to say:

"They are, on the whole, a very promising group but it still takes time for sophomores, no matter how promising, to mature under fire and to iron out mistakes. For this reason, I think we'll be a better team by November—barring those costly injuries, of course—than we were at that stage last year."

The Class of '63 was no better than 2-2-2 on the season as freshmen, but could have been 5-1 had it owned a placekicker. Ties of 6-6 with good Rutgers and Penn first-year elevens were recorded, in addition to a one-sided 56-18 lacing of Columbia and a well-earned 20-12 triumph over Harvard in Cambridge mud. Yale edged the young Tigers by a touchdown and Colgate by a point.

Ability on the part of a first-year player to break into varsity ranks as a starter is rare. Noteworthy exceptions in the past five years have been Fred Tiley, John Sapoch, Frank Szvetecz and Jim Stansbury, while Hugh Scott and Jim Blair stepped in ably when injuries removed key players ranked above them. It is worth noting, however, that Dan Sachs won all-Ivy rating while playing in a reserve capacity as a sophomore and that a player of such considerable promise as captain-elect Don Kornrumpf has yet to start a game at Princeton.

Last year, seven seniors and four juniors began the final contest against Dartmouth. A baker's dozen of sophomores are moving up to the varsity ranks hoping to see steady action; by positions, these are the newcomers who will bear watching.

Ends: Three of considerable promise—all better than average height at 6-3. Best bet to crack the starting lineup at this position is Dennis Keller, a 206-lb. graduate of Hinsdale (Ill.) High School. Good defensively, he will be groomed for the spot on the right side of the line vacated by Ed Kostelnik, where no lettermen are available.

Another good prospect there is Terry Conroy, who played behind Keller last season and came here with four years' experience as an end at St. Mary's High School in Brookline, Mass. On the other side of the line, the candidates for shortside end will be bolstered by Barry Schuman, who started all six games as a freshman. He is rated an excellent pass receiver and good all-around prospect.

Tackles: The only other line position, in addition to end, at which the sophomores may be of real value. Three of the four possibilities are unusually big for a Princeton line and if they progress injury-free, the Tigers will be better fortified at the vital tackle slots than they have been in several seasons.

Last year's starters were Carroll Neesemann, 6-1, 211, and Stan Schainker, 6-3, 219. The former is a Gilman alumnus, while Schainker, a converted end, learned his football at University City High School in Missouri. Good bets for reserve action are Ray Yatko, 6-2, 198, a Wilkes-Barre resident, and Bill Wright of Scarsdale, N. Y. The latter at 6-4, 215 was the biggest member of last year's freshman squad but showed good speed for his size.

Guards, Centers: None of adequate potential to fit immediately into the varsity picture.

Backs: Best player is probably fullback Brad Urquhart, who held the job last season despite top-flight competition, but the best bet to break into the varsity lineup is John Henrich. A six-foot, 181-lb. Texan, Urquhart is a solid linebuster who doubles well on defense and will undoubtedly see considerable action behind Kornrumpf.

There is a good possibility that Henrich may be brought along to fit into the quarterback slot in the Tigers' starting backfield. The graduated Jay Cullen saw most of the action there last year and Henrich at 6-1, 202 is tabbed with the potential to give the varsity holdovers stiff competition. A fine blocking back, he came here with a background of single wing football experience gained at the Nichols School in Buffalo under George Stevens, the Tigers' quarterback in 1951.

Another good prospect is Dan Terpack, a somewhat sawed-off operative at 5-9, 165 who was good enough to start all the freshman games last year at wingback. The Wilkes - Barre resident has speed and can pass. Backfield prospects also include 5-11, 198-lb. Bill Merlini, who spelled Urquhart at fullback last year and a pair of tailbacks, Frank Remley (6-0, 193) and Greg Riley (6-1, 171).

Inevitably, academic attrition has taken its toll. Four of the sophomore prospects whom the coaching staff had singled out as better than average will be unavailable. Three were backs: Walt Acuff who is out of college; Frank Bell and Bob Keyes, plus end Joe Freynik. The latter are on scholastic probation and hence out of the picture.

Next Week: Tentative Lineup

DR. YALE TYLER VICTOR

In Men's Tennis. Dr. Yale Tyler won the Men's Singles Tennis Championship, beating Herman Gluck, 6-2, 7-5. It was the first singles victory for Dr. Tyler who has entered the tournament for several seasons.

The experience and consistency of Dr. Tyler's game overcame Gluck's youth and endurance. The latter played some fine tennis in spots but could not match the victor's defensive strokes. Dr. Tyler has also been a winning member of teams in several of the doubles tournaments.

In the semi-finals, Gluck came from behind to oust Martin Katz, 5-7, 6-3, 8-6. Alan Tucker lost to Dr. Tyler in straight sets, 6-1, 6-3.

The final tournaments will start Monday when Men's Doubles and Ladies Doubles are played. Entries may be made at the YMCA on Avalon Place or at the University courts.

BOWERS WINS, TIES

In YMCA Junior Baseball Loop. Bowers shut out previously unbeaten Princeton Water Co. and tied Nassau Oil in a game called by darkness to vacate the league's cellar and move into a tie for third with Nassau Oil in the Junior Baseball League. Bowers blanked the leaders, 9-0 and would have moved into second place had not Nassau Oil squeezed in two runs against it in another contest to tie just before darkness took over.

In other games, the Water Co. beat Matthews, 7-4, for its third win to retain its lead (3-1) over second place Matthews (2-2) who romped over Nassau Oil, 11-1. Bowers and Nassau Oil are tied for third with identical 1-2-1 records.

FIVE-SPORT ATHLETE

Modest About Accomplishments. Mike Sandusky, starting offensive right guard for the professional Pittsburgh Steelers for the past four seasons, is a five-sport athlete. But the 5-11, 240-pound grid star is modest about his accomplishments. "I'm a terrible golfer," he is quick to point out.

Golf, however, seems to be the only sport in which Mike does not excell. When not performing in the Steeler forward wall, Mike wrestles professionally, and also finds time for a little baseball with the Montgomery Township team of the Tri-County League.

A catcher with the only Somerset County entry in the league, whose commissioner is B. E. Bergasen of Princeton, Mike is a constant long-ball threat, and a "whale of a defensive catcher," according to his coach, Ted Lubas. "I don't imagine anybody wants to run into him when he's blocking the plate," Lubas declared.

STEELER ON THE PRINCETON SCENE: Mike Sandusky, an All-American at Maryland and now a topflight guard for the Pittsburgh Steelers, has been playing for Montgomery Township in the Tri-County Baseball League. (Story, this page.)

Mike who lives at 21 Finderne Avenue, Somerville, left Tuesday to rejoin the Steelers for their pre-season practice sessions 30 miles south of Pittsburgh. The exhibition season will open in August, and he claims he has "a lot of training to do before I get in shape."

All-American at Maryland. The 25-year old guard is a graduate of the University of Maryland, where he played varsity football for three years and received an all-American berth in his senior year. In 1955 his junior season, Sandusky played in the Orange Bowl against Oklahoma. He remembers the game sadly; Maryland lost, 21-7.

While in college Mike also wrestled for three years. In his sophomore and junior years he captured the Atlantic Coast Conference Wrestling Crown in the heavyweight division. "I played lacrosse in college," Mike said, "just to keep in shape."

Mike is also an experienced track star. As a senior at Bound Brook High School, Mike broke the school record in both the discus throw and the shot put.

Mike never played on an organized baseball team until after his college days, but he must have been a standout sandlot performer because as a teenager he was scouted by ex-Yankee greats George Sternweiss and Tommy Henrich, who tried to convince the talented youngster to sign a contract with the, then-World Champions.

Although Mike has never been seriously injured in all of his years of athletics, an accident when he was only 6 years old even before they were begun. When Mike was in the first grade he was struck by a car injuring his right leg. The doctors set it, but gangrene developed. Mike said, "They nearly amputated the leg," he added nervously.

Mainly through the protestations of his father, they did not amputate, and Mike eventually recovered. The only remnant the youthful accident is a plani num spike which doctors inserted in the injured thigh. "I feel it slightly during cold weather even today," Mike admitted.

But the injury can't be doing substantial damage since Sandusky has played every single minute of offensive football for the Steelers for the past three seasons.

Asked if he would like to play in the backfield some day, Mike replied: "I've been in the line for such a long time now that I wouldn't know what to do with the ball even if I got it." Mike sees a successful season in the Eastern Division of the National Football League for the Steelers. "Pittsburgh" he declares firmly, "is pretty well loaded this year. We're the team to beat."

Dr. Eugene J. Saletan of 252 Fischer Place has been appointed a lecturer in Physics in the College of Arts and Sciences at Rutgers University. A graduate of Stuyvesant High School, New York City, Dr. Saletan received his B.A. from Brooklyn College and his master's and doctorate from Princeton University.

He was a part time graduate assistant at Princeton from 1948 to 1952. An army air force veteran, Dr. Saletan was employed in Cooper Union's Physics Department from 1953 to 1958. For the past two years he has held a National Science Foundation faculty fellowship at Princeton.

Alfred H. Lowe of Plainsboro Road, Cranbury, was elected President of the State Board of Agriculture last week. Mr. Lowe succeeds Herbert O. Wegner of Newfield, a poultryman.

Mr. Lowe is a truck crop grower, who operates a 125-acre farm in Cranbury. He is a past president of the Passaic County Board of Agriculture where he farmed prior to 1951. Mr. Lowe has served as president of the Board of Managers of the New Jersey Agricultural Society and is a member of the state Agricultural Society, the New Jersey State Horticultural Society, and the Vegetable Growers Association of New Jersey.

areas, since the Mosquito Commission cannot police all trouble spots. The Board points out that cutting down the mosquito population prevents disease, and that the following ten steps are not time consuming or costly.

(1) Eliminate all standing fresh water.
(2) Flatten all tin cans or puncture both ends.
(3) Completely seal cesspools and screen all vents.
(4) Clean regularly clogged roof gutters and drain flat roofs, so no water stays.
(5) Cover all standing receptacles, such as rain barrels, in rural areas with netting.
(8) Empty and refill outdoor bird baths daily.
(7) Stock garden pools with goldfish.
(8) Tilt wheelbarrows and other machines with containers to prevent holding water.
(9) Empty watering can after using around the garden.
(10) Dispose of old tires, or anything which holds water.

CHECK THAT POISON IVY!

Warns Borough Health Officer. David T. Blake, Borough Health Officer, has admonished property owners to keep their lawns and grounds free from all types of harmful and noxious weeds.

It is against the Borough sanitary code to permit poison ivy and or any other poisonous plant to grow within 25 feet of any public sidewalk, street or building, Mr. Blake pointed out. It is also unlawful to permit the flowering of any rag weed or other type of noxious weed on any property, either private or pubic, he said.

WATCH FOR SIGNS

At Safe Bathing Areas. For the second consecutive year the New Jersey State Department of Health will identify with 22-inch signs lake bathing places which comply with its standards. Requirements for compliance are that the bathing water be of good quality, the general sanitation of the area be good, and there must be adherence to safety conditions.

The signs which carry the seal of the State Department of Health, contain the following legend: "This Bathing Lake meets the standards of the New Jersey State Department of Health."

The proprietor of the bathing area will be responsible for periodic sampling and bacteriological analysis of the water. Health officials and personnel of the State Department will make sanitation and safety evaluations of their own.

According to Dr. Roscoe P. Kandle, State Commissioner of Health, the signs help the public to identify those lakes which meet the Department's standards. He said the department will continue to award certificates of compliance to owners who maintain safe conditions.

AUXILIARY MEETS

Lions Group Convenes. Mrs. Frank Scott was appointed secretary of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton Lions Club at a meeting of the executive committee held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Heinrich, president of the organization.

Mrs. Scott will replace Mrs. Harry Dresser, newly elected secretary, whose resignation was accepted at the meeting.

News Of The CHURCHES

CONGO TEACHER TO SPEAK

At Union Presbyterian Service. The Rev. Lamar Williamson, who left the uneasy Belgian Congo only last week, will speak at the Union Presbyterian Service this Sunday. The service, which includes the congregations of the First, Second and Witherspoon Churches, is scheduled for 9:30 and 11 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Churches.

The Rev. Mr. Williamson spent three years as a missionary on the edge of tribal warfare in the now strife-torn Congo. He taught at a school for native pastors in Kasi Province, some 200 miles south of the provincial capital of Lulunbourg, scene of recent violence.

A 34-year old native of Monticello, Ark., the Rev. Mr. Williamson hopes to return to the Congo after a year of graduate work here. He says he "didn't like leaving when the chips were down" and has vowed to return.

Dr. Frank W. Bliss, the Rev. Mr. Williamson's brother-in-law and his host while in Princeton, will introduce the Congo missionary to the congregation. The Rev. David L. Crawford, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, will lead the worship.

BULLETIN NOTES

Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church will hold its annual Sunday School picnic next Thursday, July 28, at Asbury Park. Buses will leave from the church at 10 a.m., with a $2 round-trip fare for adults and a $1 fee for children who do not belong to the Sunday School.

The "Fair-Weather" Vacation Bible School of the Community Presbyterian Church in Kendall Park is scheduled to open at 9 a.m. next Monday. The school, which already has a registration of 77 children, will hold two and a half hour sessions on the Frank Beck Farm each day for two weeks. The staff of 24 is headed by Mrs. Robert Gorham, 7 Nassau Road, who has had experience in the television program "Romper Room."

Arnold Pehta of the Lutheran Church of the Messiah attended the 43rd international convention of the Lutheran Laymen's League in Minneapolis, Mr. Pehta is membership chairman and member of the board of governors of the Mid-Atlantic District of the Lutheran Laymen's League.

The Ethical Culture Fellowship of Princeton will hold its summer picnic this Sunday in Marquand Park. The picnic, which is scheduled for noon to dusk is open to all members and friends of the fellowship.

Dr. Donald B. Fullerton is in charge of the Westerly Road Church for the next two weeks, while the Rev. Edward H. Morgan is on vacation. Dr. Fullerton, who served as a missionary in India, has been working with Princeton University students for the past 29 years and is now head of the Princeton Evangelical Fellowship.

The Witherspoon Presbyterian Church will hold the first of two summer family picnics at 6 p.m. this Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Moore, 30 Quarry Street. In addition to a covered dish supper, the picnic will feature worship and hymn singing.

The Sunday School of the First Baptist Church will travel to Willow Grove, Pa., for its annual picnic next Thursday, July 28. Buses for the all-day outing will leave at 11 a.m. from the church.

RACE TIGHTENS

As Second-Place Tie Develops. A pair of victories for Green Gables—one over the league-leading Sportsmen—and one for Plainsboro served to tighten the race this week in the Men's Softball League. The Sportsmen's 3-1 loss to Green Gables narrowed their margin over their closest pursuers to a single game.

Howie Stillwell's two-run single in the bottom of the fourth provided Green Gables with its margin of victory Tuesday over the Sportsmen. Harry Kahny and Joe Fisher each pitched three-hitters, but the only damaging blow off Fisher was Red Tranli's solo home run in the top of the fourth.

Green Gables' 7-0 forfeit victor over Leo's Rural Service Monday moved the Heightstown entry up in the standings, enabling it to tie Plainsboro with identical 15-6 marks as the fourth and final round progressed. Meanwhile, Plainsboro blanked Sannino's, 4-0, as Russ Watson allowed only a single hit and his mates wrapped the game up with a three-run fifth.

In the other contest this week, Circle Esso produced a six-run second to move quickly away from Leo's Rural Service and chalk up a 7-3 triumph. The league suffered its second withdrawal of the season as Teague's A.C. disbanded, following the Chemical Workers' earlier action.

PAC IMPROVES

With Victory and Tie. Bruce Sandvick's steady pitching brought the Princeton Athletic Club through the past week without defeat as the team managed by Steve Hogarty won its first contest and then rallied for a tie. In a make-up game last Wednesday, Sandvick pinned a 3-1 defeat on Hightstown as Hogarty and Joe Chihbaro paced the attack. Tuesday of this week saw the Princetonians rally for two in the sixth to earn a 3-3 tie with South Brunswick.

The Middlesex County nine erased a 1-0 Princeton lead with a bases-filled triple by Bob Latzo in the fourth. In the sixth, however, Hogarty and Dick Borger both scored for PAC, the game ending after seven innings because of darkness. Gary Grover made two of Princeton's six hits while Sandvick held the opposition to four.

Montgomery Township will play the Princeton nine this Thursday at 6:15. All home games are on the high school's Harris Field.

POST 76 LEADS

In Police Youth League. Continuing its winning ways, Princeton Post 76, American Legion, took over undisputed possession of first place in the Police Youth League by scoring a pair of victories.

The pace-setters, now 8-2 on the season, defeated the Sportsmen, 9-4, as Terry Perone collected a three-run homr. Billy Cirullo was the winning pitcher. Next time out, Post 76 edged Engine Co. No. 1, 5-4, Joe Golden getting the victory. Terry Davidson had three hits in a losing cause.

Mercer Engine Co. No. 3 kept the runner-up spot with a 13-10 triumph oer the Eagles in its only game of the week. Abie Toto won his fourth of the year.

BARVES SET PACE

In Girl's Softball League. At the two-thirds mark in the Girls Softball League, the league-leading Braves, in the wake of an 8-3 Monday victory over ETS, continue to set the pace with a 7-1 record. The other contender in the four-team league, Thorne's edged Ideal Beauty, 4-3, for its fifth win.

The Braves scored in every inning but the last to overcome ETS, 8-3. Connie Stout, Lorraine Dialer and Kay Easton led the winners' 13-hit attack. Agnes Canie was the winning pitcher while Dot Moore lost it.

At Bedford Field Monday, Thorne's spurted to a 4-0 lead and then managed to stave off a late game rally by Ideal Beauty for a 4-3 win. Beulah Baker was the winning pitcher and added a triple to her cause. Pat Downing chipped in with a homer and a three-bagger. Ginny Mershon took the loss.

A game that ended in a 7-7 tie last week between Thorne's and ETS will be played off at a later date.

This older, two story, 3 bedroom home is exceptionally well-built with many nicely spaced windows, 3 fireplaces, 1¾ baths, large basement and 1½ car garage. Many beautiful shade trees further enhance the property. Fifteen minutes from Princeton on an improved road, this house is worth every bit of $29,500. See it today.

Just completed three bedroom clapboard and brick ranch, with 2 baths, bright kitchen, living room with fireplace, dining ell, study, attached garage set on an acre of ground with full grown cedar trees looking as though they've always been there (which they have). $26,900.

You won't believe that this little house along the highway could be such a hideaway, but step inside and prove it to yourself. The lower floor contains three rooms of which one is a new addition so skillfully done you'd never guess. A fireplace here makes for a cozy atmosphere. Upstairs, three attractive bedrooms, and that is a brook you hear outside. May we show it to you soon? $29,900.
